MEET THE MEMBERS!

NICHOLE CROCKETT

In 2015, I relocated to the Denver metro from Omaha, Nebraska. I am actively involved in Paranormal and afterlife research, studying the past 7 years on the PRISM NE Team and now in Colorado. I am the Founder and Director of PRISM Colorado and also an active research member of MUFON- a worldwide organization that studies claims of Extraterrestrial activity. I am currently pursuing studies in Hypnotherapy and Parapsychology & Paranormal Sciences.

My boyfriend and I own a gym in Brighton, Co. and we have a lovely, but very sassy blue heeler fur baby named Hans. In my free time, I dabble in powerlifting, painting and I love to hike and take on random adventures. My friends say I could easily be labelled as a Harry Potter Extremist but I like to call it a passion.

TOOLS OF THE TRADE

One of our favorite pieces of equipment on an investigation is the FLIR Thermal Camera.

How does it work?

FLIR uses both thermal camera and a VGA visible light camera with MSX Technology, blending images from both cameras to create thermal images with enhanced detail & resolution. This device can measure temperatures on any surface between -4°F-248°F. Boasting the ability to detect temperature differences as small as 0.18° F!

The PRISM team uses the FLIR ONE attachment to our I-Pad with the FLIR One App allowing us to "point and shoot" or view real time and rule out the possibility of non-contact spot temperature influxes to locate cold spots or possible apparitions.

FLIR offers a large range of products starting from $200+, widely available on Amazon or Ebay. If you are looking to step up your evidence game, add this to your arsenal.

DENVER'S HISTORY- CHEESMAN PARK

Remains of 1950 Cemetery

The park's history began in 1858 when General William Larimer jumped the claim of the St. Charles Town Company and established his own town, which he called Denver. In November, 1858, Larimer set aside 320 acres for a cemetery, which is now the site of present-day Cheesman and Congress Parks. Larimer called it Mount Prospect Cemetery and several large plots were designated on the crest of the hill for the exclusive use of the city's wealthy and most influential citizens. The gruesome work began on March 14, 1893, before an audience of curiosity-seekers and reporters. McGovern soon found a way to make an even larger profit on the contract. Rather than utilizing full-size coffins for adults, he used child-sized caskets that were just one foot by 3 ½ feet long. Hacking the bodies up, McGovern sometimes used as many as three caskets for just one body. In their haste, body parts and bones were literally strewn everywhere and in the disorganized mess, "souvenir" hunters began to loot the open graves and coffins. Today, an estimated 2,000 bodies remain buried in Cheesman Park and these restless spirits are still said to occupy the park as dozens of tales continue to be told of paranormal activities taking place. Most visitors tell of feelings of un-explainable sadness or dread in a place, that is today, meant for pleasure and relaxation. But other reports are more specific, often including the sounds of hundreds of whispering voices and moans that continue to come from the fields where the open graves once laid.

What We Are Up To?

Coming Soon- Haunted Rooms

We are very excited to announce that PRISM Colorado will be joining with Haunted Rooms USA to create Haunted Rooms- Colorado!

Haunted Rooms was created in the UK and has recently branched their services to the US starting with Texas and now Colorado providing the public with the opportunity to stay in haunted locations with top Paranormal Research Teams all over the US.

The PRISM Colorado Team will be leading overnight investigations at some of the most haunted locations in Colorado for those who are brave enough to join. While each location may vary, attendees can expect a fun filled night with education on how to use equipment, hands on experience with various video and audio pieces and real time investigations.

Please visit our the Haunted Rooms website and follow our Facebook page to see the upcoming events we have in the works for your opportunity to join us!
